arlance of the turf, it was a Garrison arlance of the turf, it was a Garrison nish, reminding of the old days when a Snapper was wont to slide through a the rail and buige across the finish at he played so many of these so weakly.

Iline a winner by a wink and no more.

There were almost 5,000 persons scattered over the course gathering snatches such as they could of the play, following first one pair and then another. A very liberal gallery had tracked down the fortunes of Brady, leading his nearest competitor at the start of the morning round by two strokes, and topping Hagen by three. When Mike landed home with his afternoon round totalling 301 for his full effort the crowd bustled back to pick up the other boys.

It was known that Hagen had lost leads to get out on the fortune of Brady leading his nearest competitor at the start of the morning round by two strokes, and topping that the course gathering snatches such as they could of the play, following first one pair and then another. A good drive was followed by a hooked brassle into trouble going to the home hole.

A match that attracted the most attention was the one between Mrs. W. A. Gavin, the title holder now representing the South Shore Field Club, and Miss fourth and was still short of the green only lost to Mrs. Rossin after getting into trouble going to the home hole.

A match that attracted the most attention was the one between Mrs. W. A. ack to pick up the other boys. It was known that Hagen had lost nother two to the leader in the morning nd, meaning that he must pick up five er in the afternoon to tie. And two or three others were conceded chances to verhaul the leader.

Rumors were drifting about the Rumors were drifting about the course of all kinds of performances.
For a time it was hinted that Hagen had slipped and was practically out of it. Then came reports that McNamars at had shot his bolt and dropped back But by the time Hagen reached the twelfth tee he was tipped to the fact that he needed a 75 for the round to pulk onto even terms with Brady. Then began his brilliant spurt. Also, then, his second, and he used three gan his brilliant spurt. Also, then, his second, are appeared to be appeared to the fact gallery, already rather large, started at the seventeenth. yard hole, and he could do no better than a 5.

The thirteenth he did in a par 3. On the long fourteenth he played two mighty wallops straight up the lane and then pitched to within tweive feet of the flag. He made a bold try for the cup, and his ball missed by less than an inch. He took a par 5. On the fifteenth he continued to clout for wonderful distance from the tee. His drive left him a very short chip to the green, and again he narrowly missed a 'ong putt for a 3. It was a 4.

It was a 4.

The sixteenth brought out still more terrific walloping and Hagen slapped his second 12 feet from the pin. He was down in two putts. At this stage he second in which Brady has been inneeded the next two holes in a total of seven strokes to tie. Driving off the seventeenth, he put everthing he had into the shot and the ball came to rest about 30 feet from the flag. His approach settled within two feet of the cup and he holed his 3.

To-day's play marks the seventh the during the twenty-four years of play for the open champions, and the cornered over courses in the Boston district.

Four times the open championship has been played at the Myopia Hunt Club, at Hamilton, Mass., and two of these were ties.

By this time the immense crowd following Hagen had worked itself into a frenzy, pushing and hauling about the course, and chattering and fidgeting nervously. He needed a 4 to tie Brady, and a 3 was possible for him. Another heroic effort from the tee, embodying everything that the player knew of how to play the game, to say nothing of his full complement of phys-ical strength, netted a wonderful drive in nine holes of play the odds are still more awe inspiring.

However, the slowing down of Brady in the afternoon round helped mightily toward lightening Hagen's burden. The Caskley golfer was slipping rapidly through the last lap of the four time journey around the course. When it is stated that he rangered over the finish line, well nigh a groggy battler, the statement just about outlines his status. The last nine holes in particular weighed heavily on Brady's shoulders.

SIR BARTON MAKES RECORD IN BELMON'

RECORD IN BELMONT

Wins Classic in Gallop and Covers Mile and Three

Furlongs in 2:172-5.

By HENRY V. KING.

Sir Barton, the renowned son of Star Shot and Lady Sterling, belonging to Commander J. K. L. Ross, merely had to gallop to win the famous Belmont stakes at Belmont Park yesterday aftermon. He didn't have a walkover, but it might just as well have been one so far as his chances of defeat were concerned. His only opponents were W. R. Coe's Sweep On and Natural Bridge, and they were not able to make him extend himself at any stage of the journey. Although he was under a stout pull aimost all the way and wen eased up by five lengths, he smashed the track record for one mile and three furlongs by two-fifth of a second. The old mark was 2:174-5. Sir Barton might not be the greatest thoroughbred the American turf has ever had but he proved yesterday that he is.

had but he proved yesterday that he is one of the best that ever looked through after his record breaking performance and when he reached the judges he was gone on and traveled two miles in record

Withers Sir Barton took command at the start and held command throughout. Yesterday he followed the pace for half a mile and then went to the front. The Belmont is a real test. It is for three-year-olds over the crooked S course. One hundred and fifty-eight colts and fillies were nominated for it. but all but Mr. Coe's pair declined to neasure strides with the champion. a result Sir Barton was made an odds n favorite at 7 to 20.

Loftus got the great Ross colt away in front but at the first sixteenth pole pulled back and allowed Natural Bridge to set the pace. In second position Sir Barton raced along under a pull until the woods were reached. There Loftus gave his mount his head and in a few bounds he was in command. From then to the judges it wasn't a race. It was merely an exhibition of Sir Barton's Barton raced along under a pull until the woods were reached. There Loftus gave his mount his head and in a few to the judges it wasn't a race. It was merely an exhibition of Sir Barton's speed and stamina.

"Sir Barton is the wisest horse in the world," said Guy Bedwell after the race. He won't run in the morning. He reserves all his speed and stamina for the races in the afternoon. To get him into condition I am compelled to him into condition I am compelled to him into condition I am compelled to him and lead him to believe he is in him and lead him to condition in the him and happing him and lead him to condition in the him and lead him to condition in the him and lead him to condition i in relays. Billy carried him along for half a mile. Then Cudgel took up the running and went with him to the mile post. There the two year old got into the running and set him a merry pace for three furious. At the end Sir Barton was in front. He had beaten his three opponents and I timed him in 1:18. If you saw him working by himself in the morning you wouldn't give $100 for him."

Maine Lake Yields 18 Pound Salmon.

Maine Lake Yields 18 Pound Salmon.

R. C. Haynes of Biles Business College, Lewiston, Me., broke all Marsancook fishing records last week, when he hooked an eighteen pound salmon, and an hour and a quarter later had the fellow wriggling in the landing net. Half a dozen treut, weighing from one to three pounds completed the handsome string of lake beauties.

The fish is one of the largest ever taken a in Maine fresh waters. It measured thirty-six inches in length and after it was god tipped the scales at sixteen and threequarter pounds.

Mr. Haynes, unlike the majority of fishermen, is perfectly willing to let envious angiers 'in' on the secret of the catch He used a steel red and for bair a spinuer with small smelt. He was fishing at the southerly end of the lake when the salmen grabbed the lure and from then on
